by halting further resource input into the sunk projects, companies avoid wasting even further money, than what they have already wasted ban deodorant (the reason why i switched to baby powder) - company was unhelpful and gave me the "we can't control what our vendors add to ingredients they supply us with" line of bull the fda has taken a welcome stand to protect public health by insisting that what is clearly a medical